2021 – Issue 8

AUGUST IS DENTAL MONTH

What if you never brushed your teeth? Your mouth would be sore and you would probably have trouble eating. Infections from your mouth would spread throughout your body, making you feel tired and sick all the time. The same thing happens in your pet's mouth. Most dental problems in animals occur because of neglect, but with regular dental care, at home and your veterinarian's office, you can prevent serious dental problems for your pet before they begin.

Dental cleanings usually take about 20 minutes. Here are the simple steps:

- ✓ Bring your pet in first thing on your scheduled morning. Any needed exams or lab work will be done first.
- ✓ Your pet will be sedated and monitored on a gas anesthesia that is very safe.
- ✓ An exam is performed on the gums, teeth and mouth. Any tooth problems are addressed if they need more treatment.
- ✓ An ultrasonic scalar is used to remove the tartar from the teeth.
- ✓ A polisher is used to smooth the surfaces of the teeth and remove plaque or bits of tartar.
- ✓ A fluoride treatment or Oravet sealant are applied to the teeth.
- ✓ Your pet is removed from the gas anesthesia and wakes up very quickly.

For Polly- Who is loved dearly and will be greatly missed!

All dogs love unconditionally, but some actually love you more than they love themselves. That was my Polly!! Early one morning over 16 years ago, I heard a whimpering cry outside my house. Maddie my Bernese at the time could not wait for me to let her out the door so she could find the source of that cry. She found it... a four-pound wormy 4-6 week old mutt puppy laying in the bushes beside my house. Mom and Dad came out to the farm that day to see her. I said I would find her a home but as the puppy tumbled down the porch steps and struggled follow me across the yard, Mom said “she has found her home” and she did. I named her Polly Poo. She was the farm manager and loved keeping squirrels out of her yard as well as all the goats and cows in line. She could get through any fence or a maze of them to get to me. She made every step I made no matter the weather. No telling how many baby goat trips we took to the barn together. Once she saved me from a mean bull. She hated to be in a carrier, hated to ride in a truck or even be in the house!!! But with time she slept on a pink plush bed beside her Mama’s and rode to the clinic every day and enjoyed a more pampered life. She loved to go to her Grandparents house and was told every time that she was her Pa’s favorite grandchild. His last week on this earth for the first time ever, she got on a bed and laid with him day after day. Polly was one of a kind and will never be replaced. It’s funny how we perfectly plan out buying purebred pups but it’s often the mutts that unexpectantly wiggle their way into our lives when we least expect it and make our lives perfect. That was and always will be my Polly. Daddy, it's your turn to take care of her now just like you promised.

With Polly's crossing over the rainbow bridge, the girls and I take note of the silence and the noticeable absence in the house. It's time for Ellie to step up and be a big sister, and the house to be filled with the sounds of a new beginning.

We would like to introduce the newest member of the Flanary Family...ROSIE!
