2022– Issue 10

October is time to celebrate seniors!

At Flanary Vet Clinic October is one of my favorite months, its SENIOR MONTH! As pets age their needs change and getting their senior tests done can help the veterinarian make sure your pet lives a long and happy life!

Fancy about a year ago had a medical scare- Something was seriously wrong with my baby! She was having trouble breathing and very painful. Since Fancy is 11 years old, I do senior testing on her regularly, and thank goodness that I do! By doing her bloodwork annually, taken x-rays, checked her urine, and checked her heart with an EKG machine I knew what her "normal" values and issues were. Her urinalysis confirmed a bladder infection and the presence of stones. Her x-rays showed arthritis in her neck, along with kidney & bladder stones. Her EKG showed her heart was okay. Her bloodwork helped confirm what was going on now with her organs vs what issues we already knew she had going on. By having a "baseline" for her I, and the neurologist specialist in Nashville, were able to help determine what was different, and what we needed to do to help her.

Your Pets Senior Card and Senior Testing

FLANARY VETERINARY CLINIC  SENIOR CITIZEN CARD  for  FANCY FLANARY

$49.99	$35.00	$45.00	$39.75	$95	$45

his is the senior card we give to your pet which has six tests or procedures on it that are all important for your pet's health as he/she ages. All tests can be done at different visits. If all senior tests are done at the same visit, $50 will be taken off the total price.

- ✓ GHP (blood panel): This is an extremely useful tool at looking inside your pet's body. It detects liver, kidney and gall bladder problems, checks protein levels and also checks for diabetes. Many problems can be found and treated before the pet ever shows signs or gets sick.
- ✓ CBC (complete blood count): This is another blood test that is very useful. It detects anemia, infections, clotting disorders, and more.
- ✓ Urinalysis: Testing the urine of your senior pet can find problems such as urinary tract infections, bladder crystals/stones, diabetes, and kidney problems.
- ✓ Thyroid test: Many senior dogs develop hypothyroid disease and may or may not show signs. Advanced stages can cause hair loss, anemia, inactivity, weight gain, and many other problems. Senior cats can develop hyperthyroid disease, in which they tend to ravenously eat and still become very skinny. Many complications can occur including high blood pressure and heart problems. Thyroid tests are easily done by drawing a blood sample.
- ✓ EKG: Checking the heart for abnormalities can be found by simply placing 3 small painless probes on your pet for just a few minutes.
- ✓ X-rays: Taking an internal "picture" of your senior pet's chest and/or abdomen can look at the size of the heart and can sometimes see cancerous growths or masses. X-rays of the bones can see arthritis or degenerating bone. Your pet may have an individual need that needs to be assessed.

In closing,

My mom was the strongest lady I know. She never backed down from a challenge. She raised 5 kids, 10 grandkids, took in several other kids as if they were her own, care gave for my Dad after he had a stroke and loved her animals. She was the room mother, the PTO president, the carpool lady and the Mom everyone wanted. She milked the cow, worked the garden, mowed the yard, cleaned the house, and had a homemade supper on the table every night. Not to mention that at the young age of 75 she was a breast cancer survivor. She was a straight talker who spoke her mind and gave her heart to the ones she loved. So when I thought she may have something wrong with her memory I didn't want to believe it. Dementia? No way, that could not happen to my mom.... but it did.

So, in the strong fashion that she lived her life and with the fighting spirit she taught me to live mine, we didn't take the diagnosis without a fight! I say we because she was always on my side through whatever life handed me and I promised her we would tackle this together and that I would not leave her. For years, we lived every moment we could doing fun things and making memories. I asked her a lot of things about her past. She told me how she wanted me to live my future. She finally taught me to cook those favorite recipes of hers and I worked puzzles, school worksheets, and made memory books full of pictures for her. We wanted to show everyone that we were not afraid and that the diagnosis was not going to keep us from living each day.

This disease has taken the mom I knew but it will not steal the legacy of her love. She taught me to never give up and to fight for those who do not have a voice. I know this disease has changed our story, but I also know that God will use this for good. That is why I am here today because God wants me to bring awareness to this dreaded disease and support other families like mine.

LaNita S. Flanary DVM.
